Bottom line

DV Trading is a Chicago proprietary trading firm (about 450 people) at 425 S Financial Place, in the heart of the Chicago trading district, and ZoomInfo shows two of the strongest signals on your book: Networking/Telecommunications 99 and Colocation 98 in early September. Nobody at DV has been contacted. HubSpot only has an IT procurement lead; Apollo found Jon Coffee, Head of Infrastructure (La Grange, IL; ex-Head of IT at Akuna Capital). He's local, senior and in the market. This should be a top-10 account this month.

What DV Trading is, in one analogy

DV is a busy trading pit's worth of traders under one roof. Their building is a hub; the fiber leaving it is the doorway. Two doors that open onto the same hallway aren't really two doors.

Signals worth citing

How the access path should run

Messages, by contact

1. Jon Coffee Head of Infrastructure

Why them: Local, senior, in-market.

Channel: Email Mon Oct 5, then call Wed Oct 7 | Subject: 425 S Financial Place: a second way out

Jon, I'm with Crosstown Fiber; we own underground dark fiber in Chicago, on-net at 350 E Cermak and Elk Grove. From your Akuna days you'll know how often 'diverse' paths out of the Loop share a duct. Would a 20-minute look at our routes against DV's sites be useful this month?

The plan

When	Move	Notes
Mon Oct 5	Email Jon Coffee; add to HubSpot; LinkedIn connect.	Hand-run, not a sequence.
Wed Oct 7	Call Jon (direct dial via ZoomInfo).	-
Mon Oct 12	Follow-up with the Financial Place block map.	-
Week of Oct 19	Goal: route review meeting.	-

What progress looks like (for management)

By	Milestone	How we will know
Oct 9	Live conversation with Coffee	Call logged
Oct 23	Route review held	Deal created

Guardrails

- Keep DV out of mass sequences; this is a hand-run Tier A account.
- Credits used: 1 Apollo person enrichment; ZoomInfo company and signals for 1 company.
