Bottom line

Crosstown is on-net at Digital Realty's 350 E Cermak, one of the most important carrier hotels in the Midwest. Digital Realty is pushing its channel program hard: SVP Jules Johnston launched an AXG partnership for MSPs and integrators (Sep 17), and it released ServiceFabric MCP for programmable interconnection (Sep 15). Ruth Velasquez reached out on Feb 3 about a Chicago inquiry, so DLR's sellers already know us. The play: get into DLR's channel referral motion for Chicago, so that when a DLR customer needs diverse metro fiber out of 350 E Cermak, Crosstown is named. Several of your customer accounts (Nasdaq, Sidley, Mayer Brown, Molex) are researching Digital Realty right now.

What Digital Realty is, in one analogy

Digital Realty owns the airport; Crosstown owns the highways leaving it. Every traveler (tenant) needs a road out, and the airport's information desk (channel team) decides which roads to recommend.

How the access path should run

Messages, by contact

1. Brad Sendlak Senior Channel Manager

Why them: Channel day-to-day.

Channel: Email Mon Oct 5 | Subject: Diverse metro fiber out of 350 E Cermak

Brad, Crosstown owns underground fiber on-net at your 350 E Cermak building, plus Equinix CH1/2/4, CH3 and TierPoint, mapped to the conduit. When a Digital Realty customer in Chicago needs a provably diverse path to another site, we'd like to be the name your team gives. Could we set up a 20-minute channel intro?

2. Ruth Velasquez Commercial Sales Manager

Why them: Reopen the February thread.

Channel: Email Tue Oct 6 | Subject: Re: Chicago inquiry

Ruth, circling back on the Chicago inquiry you sent in February. Did that customer land? Either way, I'd like to make sure your team has our KMZ for 350 E Cermak so referrals are easy.
