

Reaching Exegy's infrastructure director

Account entry plan for Spencer Refer | Prepared Thursday, October 1, 2026 | Sources: HubSpot, Lemlist, ZoomInfo, Apollo

80 Networking/Telecom intent, audience B (Sep 5)	Jan 2026 acquired NovaSparks (FPGA market data)	8 Exegy contacts in HubSpot	0 conversations
STAGE Prospect. No deal.	RUNNING NOW CTF ENT - Leaders (added Sep 30); CTF INTL (Stuart Thompson)	LAST TOUCH Sep 30: enrollment only	NEXT STEP Mon Oct 5: email Joseph Douthwaite

Bottom line

Exegy (St. Louis, about 440 people) sells ultra-low-latency market data appliances and services to trading firms, and its managed services run inside the Chicago trading data centers. It acquired NovaSparks in January to strengthen FPGA market data, and ZoomInfo shows Networking/Telecommunications intent 80 on Sep 5. HubSpot already has the right people, including Joseph Douthwaite, Director of Infrastructure and Datacenter Operations (promoted Nov 2025). Exegy is both a possible buyer and a channel: its clients need diverse Chicago paths to reach Exegy's feeds.

What Exegy is, in one analogy

Exegy is a newswire for machines: it delivers market prices to trading firms faster than anyone else. A newswire is only as reliable as its delivery trucks; Crosstown owns a second road in Chicago.

How the access path should run

Messages, by contact

1. Joseph Douthwaite Director of Infrastructure and Datacenter Operations

Why them: Owner; congratulate the expanded role.

Channel: Email Mon Oct 5 | Subject: Exegy's Chicago paths

Joseph, congratulations on taking on data center operations. Exegy's Chicago presence is where clients feel latency first. Crosstown owns underground fiber on-net at 350 E Cermak and Elk Grove. Would a conduit map of our routes be useful as you plan Exegy's Chicago footprint?

2. Jacob Fleener Systems and Network Operations Leader

Why them: Day-to-day network owner.

Channel: Email Wed Oct 7 | Subject: Chicago diversity check

Jacob, quick question: are Exegy's Chicago links verified diverse at the conduit level, or by carrier attestation? I keep finding overlap nobody knew about, and I'm happy to send our map.
