

Hubbell: strong data center intent; buyer and data center channel

Bottom line

Hubbell is a $6B maker of electrical and utility infrastructure, and the PCx line (in your HubSpot account name) serves data centers. In September ZoomInfo showed Data Center 99, Bandwidth 99 and Networking/Telecom 98. It's also hiring a Director of IT M&A, a sign of acquisitions to integrate. No one at Hubbell is in HubSpot. Apollo found Drew Marquardt (CIO, verified email), Mike Jeletic (Executive Director, Enterprise Network Services, LinkedIn only) and Shahrukh Mirza (Senior BD Manager, Data Center). There are two plays: Hubbell's own network (CIO and network services) and a data center channel partnership (Mirza).

What Hubbell is, in one analogy

Hubbell sells the electrical panels for the data center; we sell the fiber that comes in the other wall. Same job site, same customer, different trade.
