

Going to Leaseweb's network procurement desk

Account entry plan for Spencer Refer | Prepared Thursday, October 1, 2026 | Sources: HubSpot, Lemlist, ZoomInfo

1 Network Procurement Manager in HubSpot, never contacted	8 leads in Wave C	Dec 2026 San Jose office move (7 staff)	0 replies
STAGE Wave C prospect. No deal.	RUNNING NOW CTF ABM - Leaseweb (Wave C), 8 leads	LAST TOUCH Sep 29: call to CTO Sander Poelwijk; Sep 30 bounce and unsubscribe on new leads	NEXT STEP Mon Oct 5: email James Higgins (Network Procurement Manager)

Bottom line

Leaseweb is a large hosting and cloud provider (about 500 people, Amsterdam HQ) with a US business that has its own data centers and staff (us.leaseweb.com addresses in HubSpot). Your Wave C sequence went mostly to the Netherlands-based CTO and engineers; the Sep 28 additions brought a bounce and an unsubscribe. Meanwhile HubSpot already holds James Higgins, Network Procurement Manager, whose job is buying circuits, and he has never been emailed. The plan goes straight to Higgins with a Chicago question, with US data center operations staff as the technical follow-up.

What Leaseweb is, in one analogy

Leaseweb is a landlord with server apartment blocks in many cities. The network procurement manager is the person who signs the utility contracts for each block. That's the desk you want.
